

Attention Families! We invite you to share AAC in Action!

Your photos and videos using AAC in real life can encourage other families in their journey.

Stepping Into AAC is an exciting and innovative partnership project between the Angelman Syndrome Foundation and PrAACtical AAC.

We are developing a sequence of resources to support families and teams on their AAC journey. It will inspire and inform those just getting started with AAC, those seeking momentum, or anyone wanting to learn more about AAC to become a more informed member of their AAC learner's team. This project will be a free, public resource to be released in 2023!

Share Photos or Videos

Photos of people using AAC during daily life will be important to this mission. These may highlight ideas as part of a handout or newsletter.

Videos highlighting AAC learners and their communication partners engaging in authentic interactions with and without AAC will be an invaluable part of this project.

We understand that communication is innately spontaneous and unplanned. Consider sharing moments such as social interaction, gaining attention, AAC in everyday interactions, communication partner skills, and more!

This project seeks to highlight AAC in families.

Not all submissions will be used. If your photo or video is selected, you will receive a gift card as a token of our appreciation!
